LITHONIA, Ga. –The Arabia Mountain Heritage Area Alliance and Martin Rickles Studio will offer a virtual project update on the ongoing creation of a conceptual design for the reactivated Bruce Street School, the first Black public school building in DeKalb County. The event will take place from noon until 1:00pm on Friday, June 17. The final conceptual design unveiling will take place on-site in September. Zoom signup for the June 17 event can be found here.

Since fall of 2021, a coalition of partners – including DeKalb County Government, the City of Lithonia, the Arabia Mountain Heritage Area Alliance and design team Martin Rickles Studio – has worked to gather community feedback and to determine the future of the historic Bruce Street School building. That process has included five in-person community engagement sessions, multiple digital engagement opportunities and other outreach, all designed to gather a clear understanding of the Lithonia community’s wishes and needs as they relate to this important historic structure. The final conceptual design, to be fully unveiled in September, will feature changes designed to make the school accessible as both a historic site and gathering place for everyone.

The event on Friday, June 17 will offer participants a chance to hear updates on the status of the conceptual design project from Lithonia Mayor Shameka Reynolds and other members of the reactivation initiative. Staff will also provide updates about a series of oral histories recorded about the Bruce Street School. This event will take place virtually, via Zoom; registration required. Click here to register. An in-person option is also available, taking place at the offices of the Arabia Mountain Heritage Area Alliance (3350 Klondike Road, Stonecrest, GA 30058). Both virtual and in-person event options will last from noon until 1:00pm.

Also known as the Lithonia Negro School and the Lithonia Colored School, the Bruce Street School was built and run by Lithonia's Black community prior to integration. The school's first graduating high school class (around 1943) included three pupils. By 1968, when the Bruce Street School was closed, there were over a dozen elementary and eight high school classrooms. Several outbuildings, now lost, had to be constructed in order to support the growing student body. Following integration, the Bruce Street School was largely abandoned until the recent efforts to reactivate the school building began.
